REWORD

As we, the members of the Senior Class, come to the close of our high school careers, the thought suddenly occurs to us that we have completed an important phase of our lives—one which, in retrospect, has passed so swiftly that we want to pause and take a breath.

After the curtain has been rung down and we have taken our final bows, we embark upon new courses in diverse pursuits. However, as we have seen from the multitude of returning servicemen, school will always remain a significant part of our lives. With this in mind, we have patterned the Wellesleyan after a typical school day, in the hope that it will recall for all of us, and especially for the boys now in the Armed Services, the memories we have gathered here—for many years to come.

To the Graduates of the Class of 1945:

Most of your school life has been spent in a world at war. Many of your school mates are now at war. If you have near relatives in the Armed Services, your life has been deeply affected. You leave Wellesley High School for a world profoundly disturbed, but a world filled with opportunities for service. If possible, continue your education. If your country calls, you must obey. We hope that you will prepare for a life of service. If you put service above self, you will be happy and useful citizens.

Administration

As every class must have a teacher, so must every school have an administration. In Wellesley High this job is capably performed by Mr. Bragdon and Miss Bronson, while our principal, Mr. Gaige, is in the Navy. They are aided and abetted by the secretaries, Mrs. Peterson and Miss Balboni, to whom much credit is due.

The war has also placed a great load on our faculty members who have had to work overtime to make up for the shortage of teachers. As in the case of the administration, theirs is a job well done. For such as these, we can truly be grateful.

The Student Council, clearing house of all the questions that come before the school, is being honored this year by being made, for the first time, a member of the Community Council. Delegates from the school's council attend their meetings.

The regular meetings of the student council occur every Monday with Miss Bronson as advisor. This organization sponsors such activities as the Football Dance, United War Fund Drive, the Red Cross Drive and Play Night. The profits from Play Night are to go to the Scholarship Fund for Wellesley High School graduates. The council backs intramural sports and it voted that we resume membership in the National Honor Society.

Last year's projects have been continued also. These include the Service Flag, the Bulletin Board, and its outgrowth, the display case.

Band

Displaying its customary pep, the band has been one of the main factors in arousing school spirit. This organization has participated in many school and town activities. Accompanied always by the delightful twirling corps, and under the leadership of its capable director, Mr. Leach, the band has stirred its audiences at the Memorial and Armistice Day parades, the football games and rallies, and at its major performance of the year, the Band Concert.

From the beginning of the year, it was evident that the band needed new uniforms; consequently the Band Concert was arranged to provide a fund for this purpose. Many weeks of planning and rehearsing went into the program. Because of this arduous preparation, it was a great success, as all will agree.

Orchestra

The lilting melodies of the orchestra will long be remembered as a highlight in our school life. Particularly welcome were the musical interludes in our weekly assemblies, and the players enjoyed it as much as the audience. Their enjoyment and ability can be traced to Mr. Leach's masterful direction and contagious enthusiasm. This was evident in the contribution to the festivities of last year's graduation.

Many times during the year the strains of classical and semi-popular favorites echoed through the building to inspire and delight the whole school. Particularly popular was the "Waltz of the Flowers" heard at one of the several program interludes.

On a special occasion a string ensemble entertained the Boston Women's Professional Club during their annual Christmas celebration.

For all this many thanks are due to Mr. Leach and his talented musicians.

Stamp Drive

Under the guidance of Mr. Sumner, who devotes his valuable time on Tuesday mornings in order to assist the War Stamp and Bond Committee, Wellesley High has had a successful year in the sale of stamps and bonds. Higher percentages and lower money totals than in previous years have characterized the Stamp Drives.

Although some rooms required persistent reminders, rooms 111, 205, 209, 309, and 311 had consistent hundred per cent participation, with many rooms close on their heels. Congratulations to these hundred per cent chairmen and their rooms!

Interest reached its peak during the Sixth War Loan and "Outfit G. I. Joe" campaigns, which were held during the year. The Minute Man flag flew over the school almost all year.

The outsider, looking at the Wellesleyan might be bewildered by the name X-period. Yet to the students it's nothing about which to wonder. It's their own special extra period created for extra-curricular activities and war courses. But somehow it needs showing to really explain it; so if this outsider took a tour of X-period he would begin to understand.

By 8:45 things are beginning to buzz. As the visitor walks through the halls he hears "Wie gent es bei Ihnen?" from the German class. Across the hall the Studio Art group scratches its head and then thinks of some new esthetic creation to work out. The gym pupils of this early hour are of a special kind. They stumble, trip, or feel their way along, trying to open their eyes wide enough to seem awake anyhow. Not so the Typing-Code class. A brisk "beep beep" and "clatter clatter" is heard as the students send and receive messages. The Student Council meets in 105 and makes plans for the betterment of student organization. From the rear of the Assembly Hall the band is heard practicing for one of its many public appearances. A detour is necessary to get to the second floor. The bulletin board is being fixed and how can you tell which pictures would look best where if you don't spread them all over the floor?

As the visitor passes by 201, music fills the air. The Choir is preparing for one of its all too few concerts. Then there's the library. This seems to be the time and place to meet friends and try to talk over the latest experiences. It's so hard to study. Along the way in a small room the Stamp Drive Committee is pulling its hair out by the roots to think of ways to get and keep the Minute Man Flag.

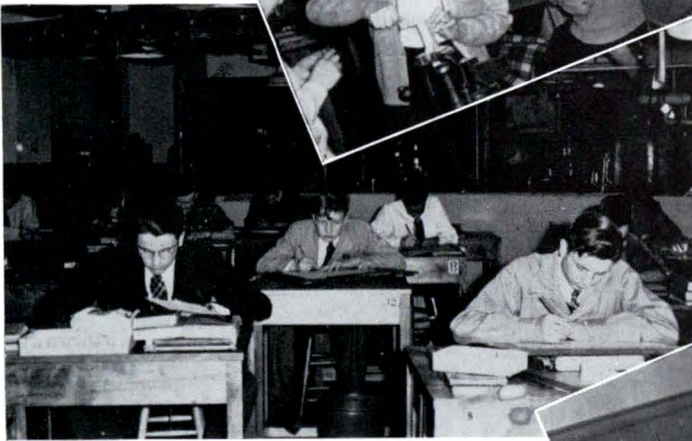

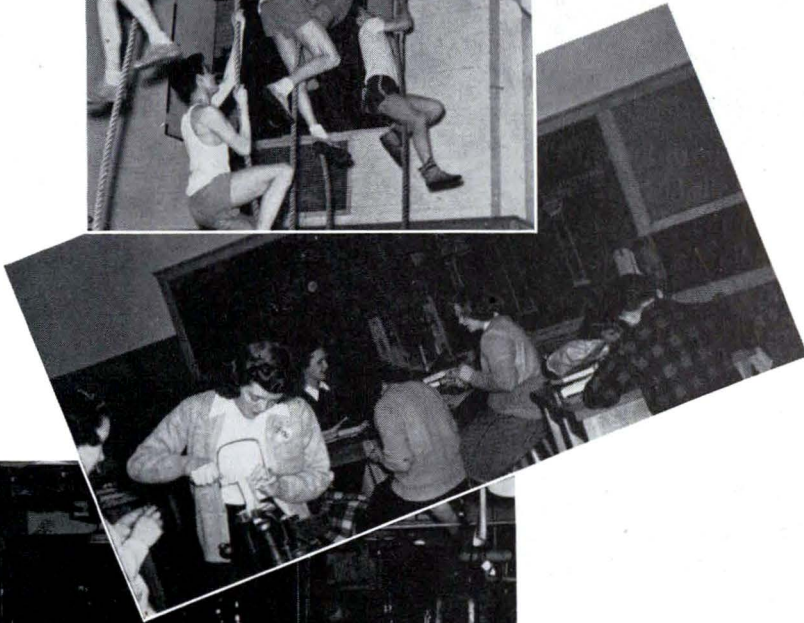

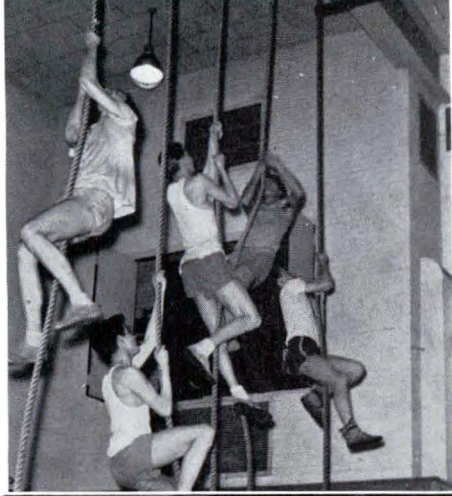

Up on the third floor the Nutrition and Home Nursing classes give helpful hints for home happiness. All that equipment in 311 is for the radio group, those Edisons in the making.

A quick slide down the banisters and back on the first floor. But what's that noise? Oh yes, passing bell—period's over.

What would we do without the sophomores? . . . Their enthusiasm can be seen in the Student Council, The Bradford, and other organizations . . . familiar sight around these parts is Ray Newton plus flashbulbs . . . a lively class bubbling with new ideas . . . Juniors are brimming with talent . . . President Don Partridge is now a page in the state legislature . . . pianist Dibby Davidson deserves your attention for her work with the choir . . . Speaking of the choir, they raised the morale of many G.I.'s up at Cushing at Christmas time . . . Did you know that they and the string ensemble of the orchestra performed before the Boston Women's Professional Club—really going places! . . . junior boys filling in for seniors quite competently in dramatic productions . . . Assembly Committee really on its toes—outstanding assemblies include Herb Greenhalgh's graphic talk, the choral Christmas program, the quiz program headed by the intelligentsia, Stanwood and Kerivan, various talent programs . . . Painstaking efforts of Coach Bean to perfect marching and drills and Miss Celeste's creative dancing are highlights of preparations for the gym exhibition . . . W. H. S. can be proud of her excellent standing in the art contest sponsored by Scholastic magazine and held at Jordan Marsh & Co. . . . Milton Grubbs' prize-winning photo is being featured on page 25 . . . Sorry not to be able to include the Junior Prom in the yearbook—it promises to be a gala affair. . . . The lunch rush of the second shift is considerably tamer since the Student Council has gone into action—life insurance is no longer needed. . . . Can you imagine Mr. Chapman without a newspaper, Mr. Goodnough losing interest in sports, or Mr. Mathers without a smile? . . . Lots of new faces in the faculty this year . . . lots of new senior class officers, too . . . the year has seen many changes and events, and as usual, has ended too soon.

The Wellesleyan

In spite of the complications involved in putting out a publication of this sort during war time, never have such enthusiasm and interest been manifested as in this year's Wellesleyan.

The highlights of the production of this book were the overwhelming response of the seniors to the request for baby pictures, the splendid co-operation of the student photographers, Ray Newton and Milton Grubbs, and the effective work of Bert Talcoff and his business staff.

Tribute should be paid to the typists, and the artists for the parts they have so capably performed. All members of the staff worked diligently to produce a publication of which the school might truly be proud. They are deeply indebted to Miss Parker, Miss Celeste, Miss Guild, and Mr. Jewell for their advice and assistance without which the Wellesleyan would have been impossible.

The Bradford

The proudest claim of The Bradford is that it is actually a student-run newspaper. Students are responsible for all phases of the paper's development. Of course, even though the staff has assumed the entire burden of the work, the faculty advisor, Mr. Crockett, is available for much valued advice and aid at all times. The paper endeavors to give all groups of the school equal representation, to promote every school enterprise, to encourage all possible participation in extra-curricular activities, and to reflect an accurate picture of school life.

It is the earnest hope of the Senior Bradford members that The Bradford of the future will continue to be the students' own paper; above all, that it will be permanently rooted in the heart of Wellesley High School.

Assembly Committee

This year the Assembly Committee endeavored to meet the demand for greater student participation in the weekly assemblies with quiz shows, musical programs, talent assemblies and other forms of entertainment suggested by the students. This goal was more nearly attained than in past years. There have been fewer outside speakers and movies. Those presented were picked to give guidance as well as enjoyment. In the future, with the combined help of the committee and the student body a greater degree of perfection will be reached.

Varsity Football

From beginning to end, fate seemed to thwart the efforts of the football team. The first game with Lexington was bitterly fought, but with the co-captain "Spif" Kerivan disabled with a fractured wrist, and seven men injured during the game, the jinx was upon them.

Under Coach Bean's tireless drilling, the team improved steadily, and a formidable defense of Stanwood, Sullivan, Chisholm, and Strehlke was developed. It is reported that the Natick coach said that he and his squad were really worried when they saw the boys in action. But once more their jinx prevailed and the team suffered defeat. Although they came up with a smashing, passing attack that rocked Needham on its heels, it was the same old story—we lost by six points.

However, in another year it is felt that the energy of Coach Bean and the boys will combine to build a team upon which fortune will smile more favorably.

Field Hockey

The girls' varsity field hockey team led by Captain Dottie Kendrick completed the current season with two wins and four losses. Needham, our arch rival, won the first encounter. Superiority in playing was displayed in the second match and Wellesley came through with a well deserved victory.

The highlight of the season was the exciting game with Watertown, a team which had been undefeated for five seasons. Although the odds were against Wellesley, the team rallied to a victory over its highly favored opponents and the season's upset was a source of pride to both the girls and their coach.

Hockey

The Wellesley hockey team of 1945 had a very successful year, with six victories, three ties and one defeat in league games. Five men were elected to the All-Star team, Co-Captains "Spiff" Kerivan and Dick Stanwood as well as Harunk, Nicolo and Murray.

A severe loss was sustained when Ed Sullivan left for the Navy, but his place was ably filled by Lennie Maccini.

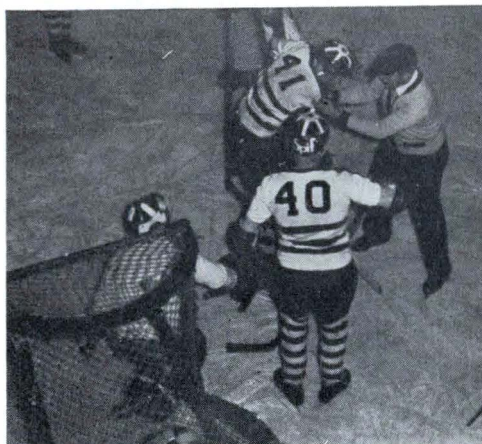

School spirit attained a new high during the hockey season with each game played before scores of Wellesley fans. Only four hundred tickets were sold last year, while twenty-six hundred were sold this season.

The team came from last place in 1944 to second place this year.

Hats off to Mr. Goodnough and the team!

Girls' Basketball

Under the competent coaching of Miss Moulton, the girls' basketball squad had a very successful season. The squad was divided into five teams: the first and second Varsities, the Senior, Junior and Sophomore class teams.

The Seniors, captained by Jean Allison, finished the season with three wins and two losses. Captain Joanne Blood led the Junior sextet to three wins, a tie and a loss. The Sophomores with Sissy Allen as captain finished with four losses and a tie. Opponents included Needham, Framingham and Newton as class games; and Dana Hall, Watertown and Weston as Varsity matches.

The first and second Varsity teams were made up of the outstanding players from each of the class teams. The final reckoning was two losses apiece.

Front Row: J. Pipes, J. Lee, J. Mollison, N. Maier, J. Allison, J. Thornton, M. Ellis

Boys' Basketball

The basketball team, captained by Dick Strehlke, had an unfortunate season this year, losing several games by the slimmest of margins. The team played its best in the Marlboro game, a fast passing game in which Wellesley came out on top, 43-23. Dover was also defeated in a last minute rally, giving the team two wins against thirteen losses.

Coach Bean also devoted much of his attention to the J. V. squad, which had a more successful season, winning four and losing eleven. Much of the next year's team will have to be drawn from the J. V.'s, a team which shows great promise.

Track

As is the case in most sports, track will be hard hit by the loss of students who have entered the services. This year's team will consist of newcomers and underclassmen who will have to train hard to approach last year's record.

Last year's team had an outstanding season. Led by Grout, Maccabe, Haward and Murren, the team was undefeated and received further honors by winning third place in the State Meet.

Some of the members from last year's team who will be out this season are Burton Brown, Stuart McIntyre, Bill Capers, Dick Weden, and Tony San Martino. These and many others worked hard last year and learned much from the 1944 team.

The team will start training early, and even though it has had little experience, Coach Chapman has hopes of another successful season.

Second Row: Mr. Chapman, R. Stevenson, M. Beuttel, J. Wright, E. Dauley, W. Turner, R. Schmid, R. Steeves, J. Gannon
Front Row: W. Capers, A. San Martino, B. King, B. Brown, S. McIntyre, R. Weden, B. Odell

Baseball

Wellesley's baseball team this year will be one of newcomers. The services have taken many key men and left the team with few experienced players. Joe Rooney, Tom Kelly, Chick Gallerani and Bill Roberts are among those who have left. The team this year will be built around Tony Pini, Jim Decker, Bob Rooney and Bob Fraser. Much new material is coming out and Mr. Goodnough's hopes are high. If we are fortunate and the services don't step in, Spif Kerivan and Dick Stanwood will also be out.

Last year's team had a fairly successful season, winning more than it lost. The team beat Needham twice, Framingham once, Natick once, and Lexington once.

Since the Yearbook went to press before a candid could be obtained for this page, the staff is presenting a proud baseball team of a few years back. All pictured are, or have been until recently, members of the Class of '45. Can you identify them?

The Season in Review

FALL

At one time or another, nearly everyone has seen the football team out practicing until late in the afternoon. But was anyone watching the day Lawson Rankin, with a flying tackle meant for the dummy, sailed through the air in a beautiful dive?—"Chis" having previously removed the dummy.

The girls were also much in evidence after school with their land form of hockey. During one of their games with Watertown, the band paraded by, gaily playing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and unthinkingly paralyzing the patriotic players.

WINTER

It has yet to be conceded by either side, boys or girls, that the other has better rules for basketball. Perhaps this is because each game is incomprehensible to those who play the other and better way.

When they gave the rope to "Chis" as part of his door prize at the Framingham-Wellesley basketball game they didn't expect such a violent tug. The unsuspecting audience was startled by a loud crash, and an empty platform on wheels slid into the room. After desperate attempts to assemble the parts, "Sparkie," the gallant steed, made his debut.

Other towns, too, noticed the predominance of blondes on the feminine court. Jane Harvey's poor gym suit! The needless washing the other members of the team felt necessary to give it. For a time there appeared to be a serious shortage of elastic on the Junior team.

Next year's hockey team will certainly have a hard time surpassing the high water mark set this year. Mr. Goodnough put in many hours of work on coaching and was rewarded by being locked in the locker room by his enthusiastic stars during the opening minutes of the Walpole game. However, this was compensated for when Captain Kerivan requested that the game be held up because Mr. Goodnough, who left Wellesley seven minutes before the scheduled starting time, had not arrived.

We hope that no Puritan souls were shocked by the boys who so frequently imbibed from a suspicious looking bottle. The contents were hardly intoxicating—just good old H<sub>2</sub>O.

SPRING

When spring frees everyone from the confines of the gym, many sports appear on the scene. Among the first is archery in which both boys and girls can be seen vieing for bull's-eyes.

Jean Pipes is probably the most skillful wielder of a racket in school, having won badminton and tennis medals galore. As successful as Jean in another line is Dotty Kendrick with her record of wins in swimming meets.

Let's hope this year's baseball team doesn't pull another boner like Dick Stanwood's. With a man on third in a close game and a bunt called for, he lunged forward and missed the ball entirely. Thinking that the catcher would surely catch the ball and put out the player sliding in from third, Dick yelled forth, "I ticked it! I ticked it!" The player had made a beautiful run—only to be returned to third.

Football Dance

The Football Dance was the first gala event of the year. Several talented and enthusiastic committees supplied refreshments, unique and decorative figures of the team, and one of the popular local orchestras. The highlight of the evening was a Virginia Reel organized by Coach Bean. The whole affair was a grand send-off for the boys in their annual Thanksgiving game against Needham.

Senior Play

On December 8, 1944, the senior class presented George M. Cohan's "Seven Keys to Baldpate," a melodramatic comedy. The cast—including a tough blackmailer, a vivacious widow, a typical girl reporter, a polished young gentleman, gangsters and several others—portrayed its parts very realistically.

Special credit is given to Mr. Newton who directed the production and contributed much time and labor to the scenery.

Band Concert and Dance

. . . Something new in the way of entertainment! A band concert and dance with marches, overtures, and novelty numbers by the Wellesley High School Band—plus dancing to the strains of one of the popular local orchestras—topped off by a grand march, a spotlight dance, cokes, and fun for everyone. . . .

Play Night

There is much worth remembering about play night—Steve Austill as the lover generous to a fault; Mary MacGilvra appealingly singing "Always"; Gertrude Wehner dedicating her talents to Mr. Jewell; the octet of jolly good fellows; Alison Duff's portrayal of the saccharine southern belle; and, of course, that renowned M. C., Milton Grubbs.

WHY TEACHERS

From the barbaric wilderness of the primary grades a horde of ignorant kids entered the portals of the "new" building of the Junior High—(new in 1907). We teachers, horror stricken but resolute, scanned the new arrivals who seemed even more moronic than the last—if that could be possible. We no sooner got them straightened out in regard to the "complicated" system of classes than we had to start passing out traffic slips—they simply would not keep in single file or desist from talking in ranks.

When the first problems of readjustment were over, it was necessary to start disillusioning their angelic souls by gently hinting that life was not a picnic. Yes, homework started. Now to be sure, they were all very anxious to learn, but we had difficulty in teaching them the right things. They were primarily interested in the delicate art of "gold bricking." Try as we would we could not make them diligent. Day after day they came to class with stories such as, "My little sister fell down the stairs so I had to wash the dishes instead."—or "My uncle came to visit from New York and talked so loud I couldn't study."

Well, after we got the problem of homework over we had to start on the subject of discipline. Apparently they had absorbed little or no discipline previously, so we had to broach the subject rather gently. The days of Tom Sawyer had long since passed so we had to be content with verbal measures. F periods were assigned and the system of demerits was explained. They caught on rather quickly, and, needless to say, they could estimate quite accurately what they could or could not get away with.

Pretty soon June rolled along and the freshmen were swaggering around like ninth graders. The next thing we knew it was summer, and we had a long blissful vacation.

When the dear little souls reappeared, well scrubbed to commence the second year in Junior High we summoned all our courage and determined to see it to the end. Pretty soon they started going "steady" and signs of puppy love showed themselves. We laughed up our sleeves but were thankful that such gentle emotions had quieted down stronger and more disturbing impulses.

About this time we noticed the students became especially clothes conscious. Loafers and horrid, shapeless, baggy sweaters made their appearance, only to be answered by loud socks and flashy ties. The male voices began to change and provided no end of classroom amusement. The girls generally seemed to tower over the boys who had not yet begun to grow. Yes, adolescence really bloomed, and inevitably flowered into adulthood of the ninth grade.

Here the students were exposed to the trials and tribulations of a little more work. They began taking college and non-college courses, but flunked them all with equanimity. Of course, we had to pass a few, but only the cream of the crop.

A few leaders managed to get themselves elected officers despite heavy opposition on all sides. They arranged a unique class dance in which girls danced with girls, and boys didn't. With a great deal of tugging and pulling they made their exodus into the Senior High.

Here they were deflated to puny Sophomores which somewhat dented their pride, but not for long. Soon they were screeching down the halls to their associates and adding to the gold rushes of 11:45 and 12:30. In assembly, however, the chosen few had to sit where they were told.

Goopy gobs of lipstick could be seen flashing in any color from blueberry to coral and sack suits were draped around baggy masculine contours.

During their Junior year, many of them acquired grandiose ideas about running the school, but, with the help of the seniors, we teachers soon put them in their places. They made particular diversions for themselves in study hall where copper heads could be seen slithering around at great speed and chair joints groaned with painful regularity. They were back in their second childhood because toy airplanes were likely to be floated around at any given moment—if they could get away with it.

As September '44 approached, many weary souls presented themselves dismally for their last year of exposure to public education. Many were the problems they had to cope with. Morale dropped exceedingly low, and was sustained only by Van Johnson. What few bedraggled males were left certainly held their own. They closed the gates on female aspirants for officership, at least up to March, and they made an awful lot of noise about nothing in one notorious class meeting. It's a good thing we don't have to pension all those officers. Because of the preference of football to footlights, one of the features of the year, the Senior Play, was presented with a Junior leading man. Unless Mr. Bragdon declares an individual armistice, the Senior Dance will either see a superfluity of does or an invasion of the school grounds by Devens. But somehow we'll get them through the throes of graduation activities and send them on to more of life's problems.
